

Coming for a medical specialist appointment

Wearing a surgical mask is mandatory!

- Single protection mask to be worn at all times during your stay in the emergency room. In the absence of a protective mask, the hospital has the right to refuse treatment.
- Wearing a surgical mask during appointment or treatment is not mandatory.

Referral letter

A referral letter from your GP or a medical specialist is required to get an appointment with a specialist. It is the decision of your GP to assess whether you need a specialist consultation and to give you a referral letter, if necessary. Referral in digital form is preferred to facilitate booking an appointment.

No referral is required to visit:

- a psychiatrist
- a gynaecologist
- a dermatologist and sexually transmitted diseases specialist
- a pulmonologist (in cases of suspected tuberculosis)
- an ophthalmologist
- a dentist
- a traumatologist or surgeon in the case of recent trauma (within past 24 hours)

To get an appointment with a specialist, you need to book an appointment in advance:

- at the reception desk;
- by phone (+372) 666 1900 from Monday to Friday 07:15-18:00; or
- Health Portal <https://www.terviseportaal.ee/en/>

It is possible to schedule appointments 4 months in advance. Demand for medical appointments by people in need is currently higher than the availability of services, partially due to the limited number of certain specialists and the agreement with the Estonian Health Insurance Fund. Therefore, the waiting list might turn out to be long.

If you are covered by health insurance but do not have a referral letter or you wish to receive a health service without having to wait, you have the possibility to book a paid medical specialist appointment.

Read your referral letter carefully before coming to the investigation to be sure of the address at which the service is provided. Be careful, as investigations have time and duration restrictions. As diagnostic investigations are done in hospitals in different locations, it is important that you are in the right place at the right time. If you go to the wrong location, you may no longer be able to get your investigation done.

Remote consultation

A remote consultation is a remote appointment between a patient and a healthcare professional where a phone call, video call or web chat is used to communicate.

Our specialists, nurses, midwives and other specialists (clinical psychologists, physiotherapists, activity therapists and speech therapist) are available for remote consultation.

A remote consultation and means of communication will be agreed with you in advance, taking into consideration your wishes and opportunities.

If you would like to record the remote consultation, be sure to request permission to do so at the start of the consultation!

Recommendations for patients to ensure that your remote consultation goes smoothly:

1. Be nearby the device (telephone, computer) at the agreed time. Be prepared for a call from the hospital and take into consideration that it may come from a number you are unfamiliar with.
2. Check your device in advance to make sure that:
 - you have functioning Internet connection;
 - your camera and microphone work;
 - you have sufficient battery.
3. Make sure that you have access to any important information you may be asked to provide during the consultation, such as:
 - the name and doses of any medicinal products you use and how often you take them (prescription as well as over-the-counter medicine);
 - the names of any food supplements, vitamins, medicinal herbs you take;
 - the results of previous investigations and analyses, if available on paper;
 - regular health notes (if available), e.g. blood pressure diary, food diary, headache diary.
4. Make sure all aids you may need are close by, e.g. glasses or hearing aid. Have a pen and paper ready for taking notes.
5. Plan in advance the things you definitely want to ask or discuss during the consultation.

6. Find a private, quiet and well-lit place for the remote consultation.

7. Be sure to ask if there is something you do not understand during the consultation.
