

Medical genetics

A medical geneticist offers counselling to people who have been diagnosed with or are suspected of having a genetic disease.

The geneticist's consultation provides the patient with information about the disease diagnosis, explains how the disease is inherited in the family, what the risk of recurrence is to close relatives, what the testing options are for the patient and their closest relatives and what the treatment options are.

Teenused

Appointment with a geneticist