Outpatient appointment with an allergist-immunologist

Both children and adults who have already been diagnosed with or are suspected of having an allergic disease (such as allergic rhinitis, asthma, allergic skin rash or hives, food allergies, insecticide allergies, drug allergies), immunodeficiency (including abnormally common or abnormally severe infections) or other disorder encompassing the immune system are welcome to an appointment with an allergist-immunologist.

In order to refer a patient to a consultation with an allergist-immunologist one's family physician will prepare an e-consultation referral, to which we will respond within 4 working days (we will contact you and arrange an appointment date).

It is also possible to get an appointment with a referral from another medical specialist.

If you are not insured by the Estonian Health Insurance Fund or wish to come to an appointment outside the waiting list for care/without a referral, we offer paid appointments with the allergist-immunologist, in which all examinations and analyses are also conducted for a fee.
